

Farewell and good luck to John Wright
By Samantha Turcotte

In late January the Canadian Ecology Centre – Forestry Research Partnership (CEC-FRP) was saddened to hear of the resignation of a valued employee: John Wright. John started working for the FRP as a GIS intern in May 2005, and in that time has worked on a variety of projects including: the FRP's 2020 project, coordinating the Sir Sanford Fleming Geomatics Camps, developing and maintaining the ArcIMS services for Tembec Forest Resource Management sections in Manitoba and Ontario, and developing secure websites for clients such as the Lake Abitibi Model. For much of his time here, John also (thankfully!) took on many of the CEC-FRP's network administration and other technical difficulties, provided GIS training to a number of groups, and helped Paul Courville with the creation of new GIS map products using LiDAR.

On January 23rd, 2007, John started his new position as a GIS specialist with the Grey-Sauble and Saugeen Valley Conservation Authorities based in Owen Sound. The CEC-FRP staff would like to wish John and his family the best of luck in their new location! John's skills and positive attitude will be greatly missed.
